

J. A. MYRICK, 72, FOR 21 YEARS A GUIDE, EXPIRES

He Was Well Known For His Mathematical Abilities.

RESIDED HERE LAST 40 YEARS

Joseph Albert (Bert) Myrick, 72, for 21 years a battlefield guide, died this morning at 8:30 o'clock at his home, 43 Breckenridge street, following a long illness.

Several years ago Mr. Myrick was stricken with Huntington's chorea, a disease that left him in a nervous condition. For the last several years he had been confined to his home and on Christmas day his condition became serious. He had been confined to bed since that time.

He was born and died in the Myrick home on Breckenridge street that has been in the Myrick name for five generations. He had made that his home during his entire life, although he was employed at other points in the state for several years.

Mr. Myrick was the last member of the family of the late Joseph A. and Lovina C. (Werrick) Myrick.

Known for Mathematical Ability
Famed for his mathematical abilities, the deceased was able to multiply, add, subtract and divide large figures in split seconds and name the correct answer for his amazed audience. Asked how he did it, he would always reply, "It's a gift." Among his last words were those giving the correct answer almost instantly to a question asking the product of two large figures.

Mr. Myrick attended the first parochial school in Gettysburg in the building now standing at the rear of the rectory of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church. Professor Powers was his first instructor.

After clerking in the Abner Marks dry goods store here for some time, Mr. Myrick went to Oberlin, Ohio, where he graduated from a school of telegraphy and then entered the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Member of Guides' Association
While working at Lewistown, Mr. Myrick met and married Cora E. Furner, Mexico, Huntington county. They were married in Harrisburg.

SPEAKERS WARN OF 'ISM' PERILS AT K. OF C. DINNER

Rev. Fr. Feeser Discusses Attacks on Catholics in Spain, Elsewhere.

XAVIER PASTOR LAUDS FLAHERTY

A recapitulation of the atrocities committed against the Catholic church in Spain and in other countries, and a warning that the same thing "might happen here," were included in the address by the Rev. Francis X. Feeser before the assembly of Knights and their guests at the holiday banquet given by the Knights of Columbus in their lodge rooms, center square, Tuesday evening. T. E. Farrell, grand Knight of the local council, acted as toastmaster.

Father Feeser, a former principal of the Catholic high school in Harrisburg, was the principal speaker at the dinner, which featured talks by Father Mark E. Stock, pastor of St. Francis Xavier's Catholic church, and Pius C. Stock, oldest member of the order in this section. Mr. Stock has been a Knight for the last thirty-seven years.

Warn of Danger of "Isms"
Both Father Stock and Father Feeser warned of the danger of the spread of "isms." Each urged the Knights to be prepared to guard against the spread of alien theories.

Father Stock paid tribute to the memory of James A. Flaherty, past Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, who died recently. Mr. Flaherty was Supreme Knight for 18 years, from 1909-1927. A Philadelphia barrister, he was one of the most noted of Catholic men. He was in charge of the Knights of Columbus war activities, and his services won him decorations from this country and France.

Father Stock told of Mr. Flaherty's activities here in 1925 at the dedication of the new front to St. Francis Xavier's church, which was donated by the Knights of Columbus. "Mr. Flaherty was just a great big boy," Father Stock said, and added, "His joy at being here was immense. He was a true Knight, a true Catholic, a true gentleman."

Held Many Honors

Mr. Flaherty had been connected with the Knights of Columbus since 1893 when he instituted the Philadelphia council and became its first grand Knight. In 1927, when he refused re-election as Supreme Knight at the convention in Portland, Oregon, the Knights created (Continued on Second Page)

5 OF 10 DRIVERS ARRESTED FACE SPEEDING COUNT

One Motorist Fails to Tilt Light Beams After Being Signaled.

2 OVERLOADED TRUCKS FOUND

Highway patrolmen from the local substation arrested 10 drivers Tuesday afternoon and evening and charged them with violations of the state motor code.

Five motorists were nabbed for speeding; two for driving overloaded trucks; one for making an improper pass on the crest of a hill; one for failing to lower the lights of his car on the approach of another vehicle traveling in the opposite direction, and one for reckless driving.

Frank Hammond, Spring Run, was driving along the Lincoln highway west of here Tuesday night when he failed to tilt his light beams although signaled three times by an approaching patrol car. The officers turned their machine and followed Hammond for a distance of more than five miles and found that he did not lower his headlights beams at any time over that course. A charge has been filed against him before a justice of the peace in the vicinity. Hammond's defense was that he "couldn't find the button" used to change the beam. The officers said he had driven a year.

2 Coal Trucks Overweight
Melvin Harris, Hampstead, Maryland, and John S. Redding, Millers, Maryland, were nabbed in Hanover Tuesday evening for driving overweight coal trucks. Both were charged before Justice of the Peace Lester J. Sell, Hanover, and were committed to the York county jail when they were unable to pay the $50 fine and costs levied on each by the Hanover justice. The arresting officer alleged that Harris was hauling a gross weight of 14,800 pounds and Redding, 16,120 pounds. Neither was legally permitted to haul over (Continued on Page Two)

ATTEMPT MADE TO BURN AUTO

Borough Officer Finds Abandoned Sedan; Checks Stolen Car Reports.

A 1932 model blue Plymouth sedan was abandoned late Tuesday night or early this morning in an alley at the rear of the William Wavell property, Steinwehr avenue, and an attempt made to destroy the machine by fire after license plates had been removed from the machine.

Borough Officer D. J. Wolf was notified about 10 o'clock this morning and began an investigation in an attempt to learn the name of the owner of the car, which he believes is a stolen machine.

The car had apparently figured in a collision for the hub cap was missing from the right front wheel, the right front fender was crumpled and bore a trace of green paint, and the handle had been broken off the right front door.

Under the hood of the car the officer found a crushed newspaper stuffed about the wiring. The paper, a copy of the Monday, December 28, edition of The Gettysburg Times, was partly burned, indicating that an attempt had been made to destroy the machine, the officer believes.

The only clue the officer found was a Washington, D. C. street car pass that was issued for use early last November.

The machine bore serial number 173260 and motor number PB57380. A check of stolen car reports at the local substation of the state police failed to reveal a record of the machine. A check is to be made of bureau of motor vehicle records at Harrisburg and Washington, D. C., in an effort to identify the car.

HIGHER COURT TO GET EVIDENCE IN MILK SALE CASE

Dairyman, Convicted By McSherrystown Justice, Seeks Hearing Here.

FIRST ACTION OF KIND IN COUNTY

The justice's bill of costs and documentary evidence in the case in which C. A. Feeser, trading as the Sanitary dairy, Conowingo township, is charged with causing milk to be sold at 10 cents a quart in violation of a state milk board order setting the price of milk in this area at 11 cents, were filed Tuesday at the office of the prothonotary, C. Arthur Brame, in the court house.

Feeser, convicted and fined $25 and costs by Justice of the Peace Lawrence J. Bunty, McSherrystown, has carried his case to the courts for hearing. Judge W. C. Sheely has issued a rule on Justice Bunty and Edwin H. Ridgway, director of audits and investigations for the Pennsylvania milk control board, the prosecutor in the case, to show cause why a certiorari (a writ that directs a lower court to send up the record of a case to a higher court) in Feeser's conviction should not be allowed. The rule is returnable January 25.

Case Dismissed Here
The charge laid by Ridgway alleges that he bought a quart of milk from Mrs. Bertha Wilt, 644 Third street, Hanover, on November 2. Mrs. Wilt is the wife of an employee of Feeser who had been instructed to sell milk at 10 cents a quart, it was testified at the hearing.

The action apparently is based on the same transaction on which a similar charge was brought against Feeser before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer, the evening of November 2. The local justice dismissed the case for lack of sufficient evidence when the prosecutor failed to establish important facts in the transaction.

The information before the McSherrystown justice was laid November 23 and the arrest made by Constable Thomas Fritz on November 28. A hearing was held December 1 and the justice reserved his decision in the case until December 8 when he found Feeser guilty.

The case is the first of its kind to be brought in this county and one of the first in the state.

Savings for Adams County Estimated at $80,000 by Light Rate Deductions now being executed by the utility here, will benefit by the new schedule.

Officials at the utility office here said that about 20 miles of rural lines were built in 1936, that rights of way have been secured and other preparations completed for the erection of from 35 to 40 miles additional this year.

Further proposed construction that is not yet definitely listed for attention in the near future includes an additional 25 miles of lines through rural Adams county making current available to hundreds under the new schedule.

Erection of about four or five miles along the Taneytown road from Round Top toward Barlow is under construction. Lines to Hunterstown, Table Rock and a section of the Fairfield road are already complete.

Rural Users Benefit

It is the first major reduction in electric rates made since January 1, 1936, although there have been miscellaneous reductions since that time amounting to almost $100,000 which are in addition to the present reductions.

Particularly benefited by the new schedule of rates are customers in rural areas. For these users of electric service economies have been effected by reducing the monthly minimum charge per mile of line to $15 from previous monthly minimum charges of from $20 to amounts as high as $30.

This means that service on rural lines will be available on minimum charges that are from 35 per cent to 50 per cent less than the former guarantees, dependent upon the number of customers per mile.

For example, on a line of one mile serving four customers the monthly minimum charge on the new basis will be $3.75, while under the old schedule the cost would have been approximately $5.60.

Minimum Charges Reduced

The new rate for rural customers also provides a reduction in the minimum charges for all present customers which are now higher than those computed in accordance with the new plan and will afford relief to those who now have a guarantee higher than their billings based on actual monthly use of electricity.

All domestic customers receive a cut of one cent in the top step of the block rate. The monthly minimum of one dollar for 11 kilowatt hours, or less, consumed in one month has been continued, but the first step of 25 kilowatt hours has been reduced to seven cents per kilowatt hour from eight cents. This feature of the new rates means a saving of approximately $200,000 annually to domestic customers, a company official said.

Domestic consumers using 36 kilowatt hours a month or more will save 25 cents per month. Con-

Lansdale Community Light Plant Reduces Year's Bill $22,500

Lansdale, Jan. 6—At a meeting of borough council Monday evening Samuel W. Franklin, chairman of the Electric Light commission, announced a reduction of $22,500 annually for customers of the municipal light plant of this community.

Mr. Franklin presented the reduced-rate schedule, the second cut in a year. In spite of this cut the company will make a gross profit of $250,000 this year, it was announced. The ordinary householder will save approximately 25 cents a month, but industrial plants will profit most from the reduction.

Body of Negro Remains Unclaimed

The body of the negro wanderer found Tuesday morning in an unused kiln at the Alwine brick company, near New Oxford, remains unclaimed at the county home. Police placed a description of the man on the state police teletype system but have been unable to find any means of learning his name or that of a relative.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, investigated the death and said the man had probably died from a heart attack as he slept in the kiln after walking there from Gettysburg.

If the body remains unclaimed at the end of 36 hours, it will probably be shipped to Philadelphia for the use of the Anatomical board there, the disposition provided by law for unidentified bodies.

Kidnapping Move Is Expected Soon

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 6 (AP)—The family of kidnapped Charles Mattson cleared a path again Tuesday for dealings with his abductor and indicated it was expecting momentarily a development—possibly payment of the $28,000 ransom or release of the 10-year-old boy.

Certain officials conceded guardedly they were looking for a "break" at any minute.

The government's carefully concealed army of manhunters apparently continued to keep its hands off the case in accordance with the plea of the father, Dr. W. W. Mattson.

Reappearance of a personal advertisement offered the abductor assurance the family had received his messages and that "channels are entirely clear."

The message, again inserted in the "personal" column of a Seattle daily, read: "Mabel—We have received your communications. Police have not intercepted them. Channels are entirely clear. We are ready—Ann."

Definitely known to have been published on behalf of Dr. W. W. Mattson, it was assumed by observers to be a notice the ransom would be paid soon.

Hold Youth in 2 Fire Deaths said that neither had it been determined how Catherine, who suffered two fractures of the skull but was not burned, had been injured.

Dr. A. W. Thrush said on New Year's day that injuries over Catherine's ear and eye could not have been self-inflicted and must have been caused by somebody striking her.

Although they revealed that Hawk was being held, authorities would not disclose his whereabouts. No charge had been brought against him Tuesday night.

Police Hear Statement

In addition to Sheriff Gillan and Corporal Snyder, those present when the alleged statement was obtained from Hawk were John Funck, bailiff, and Carl Hartman, both of Troop E, state police, and Edward Bouse, state trooper assigned to the state fire marshal's office. Bouse and Corporal Snyder are also members of Troop E, state police, which has its headquarters at Eighteenth and Herr streets, Harrisburg. The state police said that the statement was made by Hawk at 10:15 o'clock Tuesday night.

The condition of Catherine Gelwix continued to improve at the Chambersburg hospital today. Although she suffers intense pain, she is conscious during the periods she is awake. Police talked to the girl, but what, if anything, they learned from her, they did not divulge.

Questioned at Hospital

Questioned at the hospital following the fire by Doctor Thrush, Catherine recollected that she had eaten dinner at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seihamer, in Marion, Thursday, the day before the fire. She said that she had gone to bed early Thursday night after removing only her shoes and stockings but did not recall any visitors at her home during that evening.

"Don't hurt my head." Catherine had whispered to her rescuers as they pulled her through the window just before she lapsed into unconsciousness.

Marion residents were unable to rescue Mrs. Gelwix and Helen Louise. Shortly before the four-room bungalow, in which Mrs. Gelwix and her two daughters lived, collapsed, Mrs. Gelwix was seen lying on the floor of the living room, but intense heat drove would-be rescuers back.

Robbery Not Motive

The bones of Mrs. Gelwix and Helen were removed from the cellar of the home later by persons working under the supervision of Doctor Thrush.

Mrs. Gelwix and her daughter, Catherine, were both employed in Chambersburg, and friends of the family said that they were accustomed to keep their earnings in the house. This led some to believe that the family had been the victim of brutal robbers.

However, state police announced Monday that they had established that robbery was not the motive for burning the dwelling.

MEXICO CITY TO HAVE "FACE LIFTED"

The funds will be spent in enlarging the police force, rehabilitating the city's water plant, erecting a new jail and improving streets and roads.

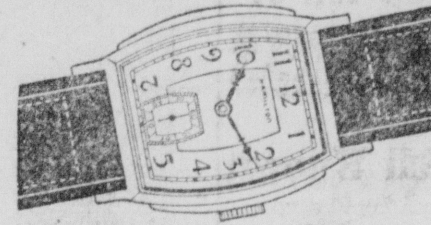

ETHIOPIANS EXPECTED TO READ ENGLISH

Tokyo (AP)—"Made in Japan," in the English language, has been chosen by the foreign office as the slogan for Japanese goods for export to Ethiopia.

The statesmen held that the English words are understood internationally and would be as intelligible to merchants of Kabul as to those of New York or London.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Plainly determined to remain aloof, Madame Karsanoff, the Russian dancer, arouses great interest among her shipmates. Bigelow sees her as a striking looking woman with magnetism and charm. His old friend, Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, sees her as a guarded, watchful creature, waging life's battle ruthlessly. Bigelow is returning to New York, after many years in Paris, in response to his aunt's appeal that he check up on a Count whom her stepdaughter Ann may marry.

Chapter Two

Champagne For Two

As Bigelow turned into the corridor that led to his room, he heard the row—a man's voice rumbling on in an undertone and a woman's voice excitedly rising above it. He discovered, as he drew nearer, that the sounds were coming from Karsanoff's room. And then he heard quite distinctly Karsanoff's voice:

"Will you go at once, or must I call for help and make a scandal?" He knocked softly on Karsanoff's door.

"Come in. Come in!" she called distractedly.

Bigelow opened the door. The Russian woman—clapping a soft white negligee about her—stood facing Woody Taylor. He was very drunk and he had a bottle of champagne under each arm. Karsanoff had evidently been in bed, for her feet were bare, and her dark hair—usually drawn in smooth shining bands over her ears—now hung loose in a dark cloud to her shoulders.

"Can I be of some service?" asked Bigelow.

"Yes." For God's sake, get this man out of my room!" cried the woman angrily. "I left the door unlatched so that my maid could come in. And when he knocked, I thought it was Mariushka and cried, 'The door is open, stupid one!' And he came in. And he will not go away. He insists that I drink with him!"

"Let's drink won't you do any harm," said Woody wheedlingly.

"PLEASE—?" cried the woman, looking at Bigelow.

Woody tossed one bottle upon the bed, and struck a posture with the other, swinging it like a club.

"So thaz how it is, eh?" he said.

"Aright, put me out! Come on. Put me out!"

Bigelow advanced, Woody swung the bottle, Karsanoff screamed, but Bigelow had ducked the blow and Woody had lost his balance. He crashed to the floor of the cabin, lay there blinking stupidly for an instant and, with a long sigh, passed out.

Bigelow stood over him waiting. Woody began to snore. Bigelow lifted him a little and looked at him.

"He sleeps, eh?" asked Karsanoff.

"Yes. He'd had much too much to drink, you know. I'll take him back to his room."

"You have been very kind," said Karsanoff gratefully. "It was such a difficult situation. I did not wish to ring and have the whole ship gossiping tomorrow. And my maid would not arrive."

"You Will Remove Him?"

She smiled and Bigelow saw that she was lovelier even than he had imagined and younger, too.

"Yes, it was rather awkward, I can see that," he agreed, smiling back.

"But I can't be altogether sorry that it happened. One doesn't often get a chance to rescue a damsel in distress these days."

She laughed outright at that.

"You make me feel delightfully young and helpless," she said. "And I have not felt that for a long time. Do you think he will sleep quietly, now, until you get him back to where he belongs?"

"I'm sure of it."

"And you can carry him without assistance?"

"Easily."

"Then—perhaps you will remove him—please—and afterward come back to my sitting room? It is just next door. And I will accept this little gift of the champagne and we will share it. So we shall be compensated for the bother he has caused us and he shall make amends. No?"

"Yes," said Bigelow.

He picked up the unresisting body of young Taylor and carted him across the corridor. There he telephoned down for the number of Woody's room and got the steward to help him. Fortunately, they met no one on the way.

When he returned to Karsanoff's suite, he found her engaged in icing the champagne. She had slipped her white feet with their rose-tinted nails into slippers of fur; otherwise, she was exactly as he had left her.

"You had already seen me as I am, so I have not bothered to change," she explained. "You do not mind?"

"Not at all," Bigelow assured her.

"You have seen me dance?" she asked, turning eagerly.

"Many times."

"In Paris?"

"Yes."

"You liked me?"

"Naturally," said Bigelow smiling.

She sighed. "But I should be much more charming on the stage with the make-up and the lights."

"The illusion. . . I am afraid you do not speak quite the truth, but you are kind and you mean to make me feel at my ease. I understand. And for that, you shall have your drink. I think it is quite cold enough, now. And it is very good champagne."

She poured it into the glasses and brought him one, curling up on the couch with the other.

"You are an American, or are you French?" she asked, regarding him.

"Some More Wine, Please!"

"I am an American, but I have lived in Paris since I was little."

"Ah, that is it," she nodded. "I have been watching you and I have wondered. Why is it you have not come to talk to me? Four days we have been on this ship, now, and all the others have come, but not you. Why?"

"Well—I noticed that you didn't seem to want to talk," said he.

"But to those others? Naturally not," said she. "They have not interested me at all. With you, it is different. Just because I find myself on this ship, must I make friends with many people who do not interest me and whom I would not know in Paris? No. I am nothing. I have nothing. Only the right to choose to whom I shall speak—that I shall always have. . . Cigarette?"

"I'll smoke my own if you don't mind," said Bigelow smiling as she extended a huge silver box.

"But of course. These are Russian. Very strong if you are not used to them." She accepted a light and leaned back, inhaling. "This is very nice," she said. "The nicest moments I have had on this ship."

"Some more wine, please!"

Mothers of 5 Condemned Men Pray Before Governor's Home

About 200 Relatives and Friends Also Kneel on Park Avenue; Parent of Sixth Murderer Keeps Vigil Before Prison Gates.

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Six men with less than two days of life before them prepared Tuesday night to die in Sing Sing prison while mothers of five of them prayed in the street before Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's Park avenue home.

The district attorney who sent them to death cells hurried a special report on their case to the governor, who is at Albany.

"Save the boys! Have pity on their mothers!" moaned about 200 women—mothers, relatives and friends—as they knelt in the avenue before the governor's home.

Puzzled police kept quiet guard but did not disturb the vigil.

Attesting, William F. X. Geoghan, district attorney for Kings county, in which the six men killed a subway collector for about $30 each last September 2, talked long to the men and then departed "to submit a report to the governor at Albany before midnight."

CONGRESS RACES TO HALT ARMS GOING TO SPAIN

Pushes Action on Emergency Embargo as Dealer Hurries Shipment.

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Roosevelt administration raced Tuesday to get an emergency embargo through congress in time to stop the shipment of more than $7,000,000 of airplanes and arms to the Spanish loyalist government.

Leaders sought almost unprecedented speed as the state department disclosed that Robert Cuse, Jersey City exporter, was striving to load his $2,777,000 shipment of airplanes and engines before congress can act.

Officials said that if Cuse carried out his intention of working stevedores all night, he would have a cargo of eighteen planes aboard the steamer Mar Cantabrico in New York harbor by noon or early afternoon today.

Extra Crews at Work

The government previously had believed that it might be two months before Cuse would make any shipments. But officials said they learned that he had put extra crews to work to get the cargo ready.

The drive for immediate congress-sional action to stop such exports was heightened by the licensing of another shipment of $4,507,000 of airplanes, rifles, machine guns and ammunition for the Spanish loyalists.

The state department said it had issued this license reluctantly upon the insistence of Richard Dineley of San Francisco. Under the present neutrality act, which provides for embargoes against arms, shipments to warring nations but not to those engaged in civil strife, the department was powerless to withhold the license.

Administration legislation to block such shipments to either side in the Spanish conflict was stripped of some explosive issues in an effort to speed enactment.

Officials said that, if Cuse's shipment is within the three-mile limit when the legislation becomes law, it can be seized. Whether congress could act in time to stop this shipment was doubtful.

P. A. Newman, believed to have built the first monoplane in America, flew it at Brownsville, Texas, the year Louis Bleriot flew the English channel.

And thinks the blunders that he makes

Rank him among the best of men.

Chance

From acorns mighty oaks are grown.
On trifles great events may swing.
Who would have guessed he'd quit
the throne

When first the lady met the king.

Bitterness

He spoke a clever, cutting thing
And a moment's laughter gained.
The laughter died, but the hurt and sting

Long afterwards remained.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

THE MELLOW HEART

SEVERAL years ago a great newspaper editor called my office and said that he was alone in his suite at his hotel and wanted me to come and talk with him. I felt deeply honored for he was an idol of mine in the publishing field—a man whose influence and kindly heart was spread over America.The notable career was nearing its end. Well, we sat there in that place of luxury and talked. With all his achievements and wealth my friend was a man of the simplest habits and genuine as pure gold. I was glad that he did the talking, however, for he was in a reminiscent mood.
He told about his early struggles, and his later political battles. He was always a fighter for what he felt was right, regardless of his personal fortunes. But what has stayed in my memory these years was the evidence of a large mellow heart. Time had tilted it with tenderness.The human heart, perhaps, takes more beatings than any other organ of the body—and yet it's the most important, the one essential organ!
Even so it outlasts so much.No wonder we envelop this organ with attributes of kindness, loyalty, love. We give it a personality, making its invisible life the real key to character and to affection. And so this heart absorbs life itself. Hurts hit it and melt into its interior. Joy and sorrow alike form its structure.
Disappointment often clouds it, especially when this comes from a friend in whom you have trusted, or from one in whom you placed implicit confidence, or to whom you gave all the love you seemed to own.Life treats hearts differently, however. It offers everything—but some hearts refuse to allow bitterness and the cruel winds of chance and change to alter their ragged and sturdy structure. They just grow mellow, and ever thriving with them, is a spring of beauty, constantly replenished from a well of understanding.This, it seems to me, should be the prayer of us all—to strive for a mellow heart, able to forget much and forgive all.

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders for Adams County Farmers From Penn State College.

Order Seeds Early

Because of unusual weather conditions last year, there appears to be a shortage of seed saved from special strains of some vegetable varieties. Gardeners who want to be certain of having a complete supply should order early, says Penn State vegetable gardening specialists.

Corn Is Ration Basis

Shelled or crushed corn or crushed corn and cob meal is the most satisfactory foundation of the fattening ration for steers. As a rule, the more corn the steers can be induced to eat the faster will be the gains and the quicker the steers will reach marketable condition, State College livestock specialists explain.

Many Cattle at Show

More than 400 head of dairy cattle will be exhibited at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, January 18 to 22. There will be a total of 65 exhibitors from 17 counties in the open classes and 74 exhibitors from 11 counties in 4-H club groups.

Cut Out Cankers

Where fruit trees are afflicted with fire-blight the cankered areas on limbs should be cut out and destroyed now. The bacteria which cause fire-blight over-winter in these cankers, according to Penn State plant pathologists.

Grow Forest Trees

Locust and walnut trees can be grown on steep hillsides to stop erosion and at the same time produce a profitable crop, says Penn State foresters.

Use Good Equipment

Many defects in milk are traced directly to old, worn-out, rusty, or leaking milk cans and pails. State College dairy specialists recommend that all old pieces of equipment be retained or replaced to prevent spoilage of milk.

DUTCH BAND LEADER BALKS AT NAZI TUNE

Dr. Van Anrooy Refuses to Conduct as "Horst Wessel" Is Played.

The Hague, The Netherlands, Jan. 6 (AP)—The conductor refused to conduct, but the band played the Nazi "Horst Wessel" anyway Tuesday night at a gala festival celebrating the wedding Thursday of the Crown Princess Juliana.

The Nazi marching song and the German anthem "Deutschland über Alles" got a place on the program to soothe German resentment over failure to display the Nazi swastika in honor of the German Prince Bernhard zu Lippe-Biesterfeld, the bridegroom-to-be.

Dr. Van Anrooy Balks

Despite the fact that Queen Wilhelmina, Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard were present for the festival entertainment, which took place in the theater of the society of arts and sciences, Dr. Peter Van Anrooy, well-known orchestra leader, refused to direct the playing of the German anthems.

He explained later he did not mind "Deutschland über Alles," but said he would never play a party song like the "Horst Wessel," because it was directed against Jews and those who were opposed to Nazi views.

Dr. Van Anrooy, however, consented to lead the remainder of the program after Captain Boer, conductor of the royal military band, volunteered to direct the playing of the two German selections.

Nazi Salute Given

Bernhard's uncle, Prince Leopold, and a number of German relatives and the German Minister gave the Nazi salute as Queen Wilhelmina and the bride pair took their places in the royal box of the theater.

Members of the German delegation raised their right arms shoulder high as the royal party entered to the music of "Wilhelmus," the Dutch national anthem, and held the salute as the orchestra played in quick succession the German and British national anthems.

The remainder of the audience, including the Duke of Kent, stood in silence as the anthems opened the most brilliant spectacle of the pre-wedding entertainment.

Queen in Gold Chair

An hour before the royal party entered, the theater was packed to its capacity of 2,500 persons.

The Queen, her daughter and her future son-in-law occupied the gold chairs in the royal box.

Bernhard, sitting between the two, frequently leaned toward the Crown Princess to talk. He wore the uniform of captain of the Blue Hussars.

Princess Juliana wore a white gown. A white wrap was fastened with a bouquet of gardenias. On a low table near her was a bouquet of pink carnations.

Both the Queen and her daughter wore diamond tiaras.

The Queen, who appeared preoccupied, wore a gown and coat of silver. She carried no flowers, but a bouquet of red roses was placed near her.

Highland Lass Sues in Court For Right to Head Clan

Seventeen-Year-Old Louise Maclean Litigates Issue With Male Cousin in Case Without Precedent in Scottish Law.

Edinburgh, Scotland, Jan. 6 (AP).—A 17-year-old girl, Louise Maclean, went to law Tuesday to fight for legal recognition as chieftainess of a Highland clan, that of Maclean of Ardgour.

In an Edinburgh court she contended against a cousin Lieut-Com. H. H. Maclean, to succeed her deceased father as head of the clan. Although Highland Scots are following the case with intense interest, Miss Maclean, if her case is upheld, will not be the first woman to head a Scottish house.

Mrs. Flora Macleod of Macleod lives at Skye, in a castle which was the ancient stronghold of her ancestors and from which she exercises leadership over her clan.

Hearing of the Maclean case, said to be without precedent in Scottish law, began Tuesday and probably will continue through Thursday.

Louise is the oldest daughter of the late Alexander Maclean, who died in 1930. The dispute has arisen since then, the girl contending that clan leadership must pass to lineal heirs regardless of sex, while her cousin argues the chieftainship passes to male heirs in preference to women.

Tuesday's hearing was on Commander Maclean's appeal against a decision handed down last July by Lord Lyon (one of the names of the Earl of Strathmore, sitting as king-at-arms. Lord Lyon upheld the jurisdiction of his court to consider the question at issue.

Miss Maclean petitioned for the principal armorial bearings matriculated by her father in 1909 and for recognition as chieftainess of the house.

Counsel for her cousin said that heretofore the matter of chieftainship of a clan was decided by the clan societies and that actually no court of law had jurisdiction. He argued no interest was involved that the law recognized and asked that Miss Maclean's petition be dismissed.

Both claimants are descended from Col. Alexander Maclean, of Ardgour, thirteenth of that name, who died in 1855.

Rebels Open New Drive on Madrid

With Fascists, Outside Madrid, Jan. 6 (AP)—Fascist insurgent troops were massed Tuesday night for a drive southeast toward Madrid as their headquarters announced the Madrid-Escorial highway had been cut.

With the seizure of Las Rozas, ten miles northwest of the capital, fascist officials reported their troops dominated the vital road which connected Madrid with its troops in El Escorial and the Guadarrama mountains.

Four hundred were reported killed in the Las Rozas battles and fascists estimated the total casualties might be 1,000.

The capture of Las Rozas the fascists said, followed a successful assault on socialist militia lines at Majadahonda.

A fascist communique said the socialists left more than 200 dead on the field at Majadahonda alone.

See Relief Need For $700,000,000

Treasury Reports Indicate Year-End Spending Will Exceed F. D. R. Estimate.

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—A treasury report showed Tuesday that should relief spending continue at the pace of the last six months, President Roosevelt will need $700,000,000 more for the rest of this fiscal year ending next June 30.

Mr. Roosevelt's budget message Friday is expected to request an appropriation to bolster depleted funds. The request, however, may be less than the total needed for the remainder of the year, because funds may be transferred from other agencies to make up the deficiency.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated some time ago he would ask about $500,000,000, but later made known that funds might be transferred to augment this.

Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, generally has been understood to favor $750,000,000 and the United States conference of Mayors recently asked $877,500,000.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. Etc.
